Born: Lyon; April 9th 1914

The Moving Picture Boy entry:

“Until his locks were shorn in 1925 - to play an English boy in "LA FLAMME" - blue-eyed Robert was able to portray handsome girls, as he did when playing the heroine as a child in "LE COMTE KOSTIA". (It was no fun, he said, being brutalised by Conrad Veidt; he carried the bruises for three weeks.) Roby made his screen debut in "MON P'TIT", and in "LES VACANCES" co-starred with two of France's best little girls, Olinda Mano and Bouboule. He spoke appreciatively of them both, and of Yvette Langlais, his junior partner in "L'ABBÉ CONSTANTIN". Clearly he was something of a ladies' man. More portentously, he was also the immature prophet Elijah in "LA TERRE PROMISE". Reviewing Robi's "TITI" in 1926, the critic of Cinéa praised his "magnificent ease, authority, wit and sensitivity" - not bad for a 13-year old.”
