American boy stars mature – or decay, according to your point of view – into teen hunks, and thus it was with Corey. Despite the ridiculous 1990s hair abuse, his sensible matter-of-fact good looks shine on.

In "THE LOST BOYS", Corey trills "I'm a Lonely Boy" in the bath, while his dog keeps his hungry vampire elder brother at bay...

The Virgin International Encyclopedia of Film entry:

“Precocious [sic] juvenile performer, effective as a lovelorn 14-year old in the title role of "LUCAS" (86).”

The Moving Picture Boy entry:

“Corey Haim was a strong, serious, sensitive boy with a face the camera loved. His career began in Canada, in a TV series called "The Edison Twins". He then moved down to the USA, and had particularly rewarding leads in "SILVER BULLET" and "LUCAS". Corey's later films included "THE LOST BOYS" (87), "LICENSE TO DRIVE" (88) and "PRAYER OF THE ROLLERBOYS" (90). He was also in the TV series "Roomies".”
