The United Artists Story comment:

“ "BORN TO BE BAD" was bound to be bad with such a trashy screenplay by the actor Ralph Graves and Harrison Jacobs... Not even the two attractive stars, Loretta Young and Cary Grant, could redeem it. She was an unwed mother who tricks Grant, a wealthy married dairy farmer, into adopting her child, and then makes a play for him. In the end, however, she realises her errors and retreats from the scene not wishing to disrupt his marriage further. It is surprising she didn't vanish earlier, because the child – a thoroughly unlikeable brat played by Jackie Kelk – steals, and rollerskates around the house...”
