Excerpt from The Moving Picture Boy entry on Yanush Alurkov [qv]:

“...Dimitar Petrov, who gets a superb performance from young Alurkov, had earlier directed him in another boat-film, "KAPITANAT". This was one of the most popular Bulgarian movies of its decade, with the deeply-felt conflicts of friendship and peer pressure one associates with good old-fashioned boy's fiction. (In France it would have been illustrated by Pierre Joubert.)

Yanush Alurkov played the benjamin of the "good" gang. Its leader, the "Captain" of the title, was played by Raiko Bodurov, a mature teenager; but a formidable meanie - heading a breakaway group competing for ownership of the prized boat - was created by Eduard Shakhpazyan (b: 23 Dec 49), a swarthy boy interestingly dyed blond. He was memorable.”
