Excerpt from International Film Guide 1975
review of "LYUTYI":

"...The boy in the new film (played by the same young actor who featured in "THE SKY OF MY CHILDHOOD") is an orphan living in primitive conditions in a wild mountainous region of Kazakhstan at the turn of the century. His uncle, a poor sheep farmer, while not deliberately ill-treating him, is determined to bring him up "tough". His grandmother, although loving, is too old to do much, and in any case this is all to evidently a man's world..."

Excerpt from 18th London Film Festival programme review of "LYUTYI":

"...A young Kazakh schoolboy, Kambar Valiev, is remarkably assured and controlled as he deals with both men and beasts."
