CVMC video retail/rental website review:

“Angela (Miranda Stuart Rhyne), roughly ten years of age, tries to deal with her mother's mental illness by taking her little sister (Charlotte Eve Blythe), approximately six, on a quest towards heaven. Childhood fantasy mixes with reality as the girls wander the countryside following the "signs" they feel they are shown. A peculiar film which will probably be either a hit or miss with you.

Rated NR: adult themes [sic]; sexual themes; profanity; moderate nudity; sexual scene
Language: English (with Portuguese subtitles)
Categories: Action/Adventure, Avant Garde, Drama, Girl Films, Little to Preteen.”

No further information currently available. That synopsis is too sketchy to suggest any relevant subject index categories. Nothing else is known of Miranda Stuart Rhyne or Charlotte Eve Blythe. The cast seems so diverse it isn't even possible to guess at the country of origin.
