Speelfilm Encyclopedie review:

“Kids and animals belong together, the producer thought, with this second and last Western with the 9-year old boy star Henry. As "Buzzy" he would play many B roles in forties Westerns and non-Westerns. In the fifties he became Robert "Buzzy" Henry on the credits of many Westerns, and in the sixties he became a celebrated stunt specialist who put together the fight scenes for, among others, "THE WILD BUNCH". In 1971, just 40 years old, he perished in a car accident.”

No further information currently available. Another boy Western series bites the dust then, but they were soon to enjoy rather greater longevity in TV Western series such as "My Friend Flicka" and "Champion the Wonder Horse". Buzzy Henry's first title with Republic was "BUZZY RIDES THE RANGE" (40). He's 10 here. Milburn Morante, tucked away down the bottom of the cast, was the adult sidekick of choice for Henry's illustrious forebear Buzz Barton, from whom he allegedly took the nickname too.
