Radio Times note:

“Children's fantasy. ** ”

Blockbusters video rental promotional flier:

“In their most fun-filled adventure to date, the mini-dinosaurs bring their prehistoric presence to a golf putting course. Great entertainment that's on a par with any family film.”

No further information currently available. “Their most fun-filled adventure to date” eh? Sounds like a warning to me. Once Ralph Macchio had kicked the last life out of his “KARATE KID” franchise, the title was handed down to a girl, in “THE NEW KARATE KID”. The same law of diminishing returns has been seen elsewhere (remember “SUPERGIRL”? Or the belated appearance of Batgirl once the “BATMAN” franchise had been driven into a wall? Or “Star Trek Voyager” finally, so very nervously, handing the captain’s seat to a woman?) It seems to have been applied to this series too. When all invention flags, there is always the gender switch. So, for your homework, consider what brilliant idea they may have toyed with for “TERMINATOR 3”...
