Time Out review:

"The London Film Makers Co-op reopens this week Wednesday with a selection of some of the best films shown in the recent festival of avant-garde cinema. They should also, hopefully, be providing deck chairs instead of the old mattresses. Particularly fine are two films by George Landow, "REMEDIAL READING COMPREHENSION" and "FILM IN WHICH APPEARS...", both clean, hard and intelligent and worth seeing time and again..." – John Du Cane

No further information currently available. Documentaries on teaching theory surface seldom, and educational trends are so notoriously faddy that the cutting edge practise of one year is a redundant scheme five years on. On both counts, a thirty-year old film about new teaching trends will be of interest, not only to teachers. I've inferred that the above still derives from this title and not the other one mentioned. The source appears to date from 1971, so this is the year given, but that too is only a best guess.
