Video Movie Guide 1993 review:

“Solid children’s story about Canadian teenager Toby McTeague, who has to take over the reins of his father’s dog-racing team for the big race. Some profane language [sic], but otherwise suitable for almost everyone. ***”

Radio Times note:

“Adventures of a small boy dog-sledding while father romances.”

What’s on TV note:

“A young boy discovers the joys of dog-sledding in Canada.”

“A young boy discovers the joys of dog-sledding in this Canadian outdoors adventure.”

“Outdoorsy adventure, set in Canada, where a young boy discovers the excitement of dog-sledding while his dad discovers romance.”

No further information currently available. Disney shot a suspiciously similar story, under a different name, with Buddy Ebsen as the grandfather who is taken sick, and Joey Cramer - star of "FLIGHT OF THE NAVIGATOR" - as the boy who keeps the farm running and wins the annual dog-sled race to save his grandfather from bankruptcy.
